

2010 – 2011

CTI Programs

Participants in the Child Trauma Training Institute may enroll in a one or a two year program.

In the first year, CTI provides training in the foundations of Early Childhood Mental Health, trauma theory, and Child-Parent Psychotherapy as well as training in how to screen children with special developmental needs.

In the second year, CTI provides in-depth training in Child-Parent Psychotherapy, an evidence-based, dyadic model of treatment for young children.

The Child Trauma Training Institute

A resource and training center for early childhood mental health clinicians

CTI offers a two-year training opportunity for mental health and related professionals. The second year Advanced Fellowship builds on the knowledge and skills acquired in Year 1. Year 2 can be taken independently of Year 1 if the participant can demonstrate foundational knowledge.

Year 1 Foundations of Early Childhood Mental Health

- Stress-Trauma continuum
- Brain development
- Neurorelational model
- Forming attachments
- Typical and atypical child development
- Family and parent development
- Intersubjective/reflective use of self
- Child observation and assessment
- Case formulation
- Diagnostic Classification System 0 – 3
- Child-Parent Psychotherapy
- Mental health consultation to childcare

Year 2 Advanced Fellowship

- Advanced Theory: attachment; psychodynamic; trauma
- Child-Parent Psychotherapy: treatment targets and strategies; the assessment process; perturbations in early relationships; ghosts and angels in the nursery; treating disturbances and disorders; variations in Child-Parent Psychotherapy

Program Components

Both years include:

- Twice monthly didactic trainings with leaders in the field
- Twice monthly reflective facilitation groups for clinical supervisors, Child-Parent psychotherapists, mental health consultants, and distance learners
- Web-based distance learning option
- Supportive learning environment
- Readings to deepen understanding of Early Childhood Mental Health theory and practice
- Continuing education units for LMFTs and LCSWs, and MCEP units for licensed clinical psychologists
- California competencies for Infant-Family and Early Childhood Mental Health clinicians

Who Should Apply

Clinicians who have a special interest in Early Childhood Mental Health and who want to expand their knowledge of both the foundations in this field and the theory and treatment of trauma. Early childhood educators and occupational, speech, and language therapists will also be considered.

Tuition and Fees

Subsidized tuition is $1,000 per year and is made possible by generous grants from the John and Lisa Pritzker Family Fund, the Ingrid D. Tauber Philanthropic Fund, other individual donations, fees, and corporate grants. These scholarships are available to encourage agency staff to enroll. For others, full tuition is $5,000 for each year of the program.
